The Lambourne Valley is one of the most beautiful districts in the picturesque county of Berkshire. The town of Lambourne is of considerable antiquity, it being mentioned in the will of King Alfred, who bequeathed it to his Queen. The poet, Joshua Sylvester, resided here for many years. The neighbourhood abounds in places of interest, including the White Horse Hill, old Roman camps, and an ancient British burying place known as "Seven Barrows."

My very Happy Happy returns I'm afraid today won't be as nice as I would make it tho' I wish I had not left the presents till so near the time. You will find me in bed. I seem to have it rather badly this time. Do go to the Concert! I want when you were ill. I'm dreadfully disappointed I hope you will get this. I've written it all wrong but it's the
